DICK TURPIN, THE LEGENDARY LAWBREAKER, COMES TO COMICS!

Publisher Mohawk Media has today announced the release of a preview issue of its upcoming project, starring history's most notorious masked highwayman, Dick Turpin.

This issue is available exclusively via the publisher's groundbreaking line of paperless Eco Comics.

Writer Chris Bunting says: "It's every writer's dream to write such a famous, or should I say, infamous character as Dick Turpin. His multi-layered, unpredictable nature makes for great drama. Expect some startling revelations about the life of this legendary lawbreaker.

Turpin lived at a time when England was more like the Wild West, and criminals faced the death penalty at the gallows.

Highwaymen led a very exciting life but often a very short one.

?This 18th Century swashbuckling firebrand was born to be a 21st Century complex comic book character. Dick Turpin's return is a case of perfect timing.?

The digital and paperless Dick Turpin: Pencil-Only Preview features pencil-art from the first instalment of the upcoming title.

Editor Stuart Buckley explains: ?This format allows the reader the opportunity to see Dick Turpin ride again in the untouched, gorgeous art of Salvador Velázquez.

?The creative team gives us a taste of what is to come: forget stuffy historical fiction, this is a comic book cocktail of action-adventure and mystery-thriller featuring one of Britain's, if not the world's, most recognisable rogues.

?With his mask and famous steed, Turpin has been the archetype for many highwaymen and outlaws: even the Lone Ranger bears remarkable parallels.?

Dick Turpin: Pencil-Only Preview is a 16-page issue featuring lettered pencil art only, and is available now in various digital formats via the Eco Comics store: www.mohawkmedia.co.uk/ecocomics for $1.95 (approximately £1.20).

Further details on the Dick Turpin project are due to be announced.
